

Don't remove the cross-ownership rules. Isn't the whole point of the marketplace of ideas to encourage as large and diverse a collection of voices as possible? Concentrated ownership does not serve the public interest and it does not contribute to a large and diverse marketplace of ideas. Thus, any rule that prevents oligopolies is a good rule for the marketplace of ideas, so please keep the cross-ownership rules. oh, and by the way, stop giving Rupert Murdoch every waiver he wants.
